To Whom It May Concern,

The Craniosacral Therapy Educational Trust (CTET) accredits the European Therapy Centre - Adult Education Institution in conducting trainings in Biodynamic Craniosacral Therapy in Poland. This training is based on the methodology and curriculum developed by CTET and is taught by highly experienced teachers. This guarantees a high standard in the skills being taught, the course structure and the teaching process.

The Craniosacral Therapy Educational Trust was founded by Michael Kern and Franklyn Sills in 1989, and is established as a school of excellence offering in-depth courses in a clear and accessible way. Our trainings emphasise the development of practical skills to provide the required foundations to effectively practice Craniosacral Therapy in a professional capacity. Student learning is comprehensively supported by supervision and feedback from tutors.

We have been at the cutting edge of the development of Biodynamic Craniosacral practices and our team of tutors includes some of the leading teachers in the field. Within the school's "biodynamic" approach there is an emphasis to work in cooperation with the underlying forces that govern our health. This involves taking a whole person and patient centred approach to treatment that incorporates an appreciation of body, mind and spirit.

Successful completion of the course leads to a professional diploma in Craniosacral Therapy and graduates are awarded the designated letters B.C.S.T. (Biodynamic Craniosacral Therapist). The B.C.S.T. award comes from CTET as part of its membership of the International Affiliation of Biodynamic Trainings.

Graduates are also eligible to join the Association Of Physical And Natural Therapies (APNT), British Complementary Medicine Association (BCMA), Complementary and Natural Healthcare Council (CNHC) and many international Craniosacral practitioner associations. APNT and CNHC are professional bodies in the UK that maintain standards and support both Craniosacral Therapy practitioners and their clients.

Yours faithfully,

Michael Kern - Director
